THE DOWNTOWN STORY

Downtown Faces Continued Vacancy Challenges

While the broader Hartford market has benefited from stable suburban performance, Downtown Hartford continues to face elevated vacancy levels driven by large blocks of legacy office space, tenant downsizing, and evolving workplace strategies.

KEY PRESSURES

- Large blocks of legacy office space
- Ongoing tenant downsizing
- Evolving workplace strategies

THE CLASS A STORY

Class A Buildings Continue to Face Pressure

Vacancy remains concentrated within many Class A office assets, particularly in major downtown and suburban institutional nodes such as Hartford and Windsor. Large floor plates and changing tenant space requirements create leasing challenges despite positive regional absorption.

KEY TAKEAWAYS*The Regional Picture

- 01 Office: recovery on removal Hartford office is healing through supply reduction and residential conversion, not a demand surge — leasing stays structurally below pre-2019 norms.
- 02 Industrial: cooling, not cracking Demand has softened from its peak, but vacancy across most markets remains below the 9.6% national average, and rent growth still leads the nation.
- 03 Supply is the differentiator Worcester and New Haven face the heaviest speculative pipelines and highest vacancy; Providence, Norwich and the smaller MA markets stay tight.
- 04 Small-bay outperforms Across markets, small-bay space holds sub-5% vacancy while big-box, spec-built product carries the softness.

Creating Value Beyond Property Management

The first half of 2026 has reinforced a core principle at Sentry Commercial: effective property management is not measured by the issues we respond to, but by the challenges we help owners avoid. Our focus remains on protecting asset value, controlling operating costs, and positioning properties for long-term success through proactive management and strategic planning.
